About the European Academy of Management (EURAM)

The European Academy of Management (EURAM) is a professional community of engaged management scholars and reflective practitioners – open, inclusive, international, and cross-cultural.

EURAM places a strong emphasis on multidisciplinary theoretical perspectives and methodological pluralism and promotes critical examinations of the historical and philosophical roots of management theory and praxis.

EURAM aims to enhance the quality of research, improve its relevance for responsible and effective practice, and contribute to the social and political discourse on management. EURAM is recognized as the academic association of management in Europe, becoming a reference for management scholars. EURAM currently has close to 1750 members.

EURAM Annual Conference

Every year, the EURAM annual conference takes place in a different city in Europe in June. The Doctoral Colloquium precedes each conference.

A university or scientific institution in Europe hosts the Annual Conference, which is a strategic way of achieving EURAM's objectives. Specifically, this helps in the continued evolution of an open, inclusive, international, and cross-cultural EURAM community of engaged scholars. As such, EURAM supports scholars in designing, producing, and disseminating higher quality and impactful research at each stage of their career. Moreover, it influences the development of management education and provides platforms and networks for the dialogue between scholars, reflective practitioners, and policy makers.

The EURAM Conference has been held in Winterthur (Switzerland), Lisbon (Portugal), Reykjavik (Iceland), Glasgow (Scotland), Paris (France), Warsaw (Poland), Valencia (Spain), Istanbul (Turkey), Rotterdam (The Netherlands), Tallinn (Estonia), Rome (Italy), Liverpool (UK), Ljubljana (Slovenia), Paris (France), Oslo (Norway), Munich (Germany), St Andrews (Scotland), Milan, (Italy), Stockholm (Sweden), Barcelona (Spain), Dublin (Ireland). During the COVID-19 pandemic, the conference was held online on two occasions. In 2024 the conference took place in Bath, UK.

25th EURAM Annual Conference (Florence)

About Florence

Florence is one of the largest cities in Italy. Situated at the heart of an urban area boasting approximately 1.5 million inhabitants, the municipality of Florence currently counts around 380,000 residents and serves as the capital of the Tuscany Region.

The Roman city of Florentia was established during the Republican era, near the Etruscan city of Fiesole, and gained significant demographic importance during the Empire. Following the early Middle Ages, "Fiorenza" underwent substantial economic and demographic expansion, propelling it to become one of Europe's major cities and a global financial powerhouse of its time. It was during this period that the Florentine Dante Alighieri laid the groundwork for the prestige of the city's dialect, which would later evolve into a literary language across various Italian states and serve as the foundation for the modern Italian language.

During the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, Florence ascended to prominence as the capital of a regional state, transitioning from a Republic to a Duchy and eventually a Grand Duchy, with the rise of the Medici banking dynasty. This period marked Florence as a hub of both architectural and financial innovations. Most notably, it emerged as a focal point of a vast artistic network, serving as the epicenter of the Renaissance.

Florence's legacy intertwines with renowned artists such as Giotto, Cimabue, Leonardo da Vinci, and Michelangelo, alongside figures of science like Galileo, poets including Dante and Boccaccio, and explorers such as Amerigo Vespucci.

The museums of Florence, primarily the Uffizi and the Accademia, house artworks of international renown, including masterpieces such as Michelangelo's David and Botticelli's Venus.

Florence stands as an open-air museum, brimming with wonders at every turn.

MANAGING WITH PURPOSE

From Craftsmen to Artificial Intelligence: Bringing back Humanism into Management

The debate on the concept of corporate purpose, both from an academic and practice perspective, is on the rise. At its heart lies the notion of striking a balance between the pursuit of profit and the maintenance of a meaningful and lasting purpose. The theory of shareholder value clearly demonstrated the limits of a focus on profit-maximization. Stakeholder theory served to call attention to the value of the voices of other stakeholders, but directed a deal of its attention towards the comparison and the balance of different interests. Today, the identification, articulation and maintenance of a meaningful and shared purpose has become a central issue for many organizations. Business leaders are encouraged to embrace the idea that companies must go beyond the profit motive. They must also create value by helping society to provide new solutions to a growing array of challenges.

Managing with Purpose is a strategic assumption that creates value, enhances impact, and fosters longevity. It reflects something more aspirational than the search for profit through economic exchanges. It explains how the people involved in the organization can make the difference, giving them a sense of meaning and drawing their support. It is about people coming together to do something they believe in and allowing profit to follow as a consequence of their collective endeavor rather than being an end in itself. However, despite a growing body of research on the topic, many questions remain. How is Purpose defined? How many purposes can an organization have? How do organizations deliver a sense of purpose to their various internal and external stakeholders and what are the inherent tradeoffs that have to be faced? There are no easy answers to these questions. Scholars, leaders, and organizations need to work together to combine and exchange their knowledge and co-create new models and approaches.

Florence, as well as being a thriving commercial center, is also a city of unrivaled historical, architectural and artistic significance. As the gathering place for our 25th Anniversary Conference, the splendor of the cityscape as a backdrop will provide the opportunity not just to reflect on the meaning and value of corporate purpose, but to rekindle the very essence of humanism, and its lessons for human dignity, development and accomplishment.

We welcome scholars to submit their research to the EURAM 2025 Conference and we look forward to seeing you in Florence.
